

At left—Two sections of "The Annunciation," by Angrand Leprince (1525), in the Church of St. Gervais.

Rare Stained Glass Windows in Paris Washed for First Time in Centuries and Photographed Close at Hand

Fishing through the ice is popular in many New York lakes. These two sportsmen believe in comfort and have built a canvas windshield to keep off the icy blasts.

Copyright, Press Illustrating.

Section from the grand window portraying "The Life and Martyrdom of St. Stephen." Date, 1622, but artist's name is unknown. In the Church of St. Etienne du Mont.

"Christ at the Helm of the Ship of the Church," one of the stained glass gems in the Church of St. Etienne du Mont (behind the Pantheon and in the most ancient suburb of Paris). Name of maker unknown, but the portraits indicate the work dates from the seventeenth century.